BUILDING OPERATIONS STARTED

People Beginning to Arrive and Investigate—New Buildings Being Erected—Interesting Facts About the Advertising Campaign.

With the opening up of Spring and the sure promise of fine weather, the purchasers of property and future business men and residents of Mirror are beginning to arrive and investigate their holdings.

The past winter was somewhat slow as far as business is concerned, but this was common all over the West, and Mirror was no exception to the rule. The merchants who were camped on the scene and remained through the winter months, have shown by their pluck and perseverance that they are made of the right material. An optimistic view was taken by all, and the future growth of Mirror is an assured fact if the spirit shown in the early stages is only continued to the end. The outlook for the town is an extremely promising one and the men who are now coming in are only the advance guard of a multitude who are interested in Mirror and surroundings.

We have everything in this farm, six miles north of Mirror, Mr. Sutley paid a visit to this part of Alberta two years ago and was so well pleased with the country that he decided to change his place of abode. He left St. Paul, Minn., over a week ago and his outfit was part of a train consisting of 70 cars of settlers and their effects. It required two engines to haul the train, which travelled via Neche and Grötna and thence over the G. T. P. The settlers were from Iowa, S. Dakota and Nebraska and were distributed at different points in Saskatchewan and Alberta along the Grand Trunk line. Mrs. Sutley and son arrived Thursday evening.

In conversation with J. H. Raymer, Townsite agent here, the following particulars regarding the big publicity campaign being carried on by the Transcontinental Townsite Co. were gathered, and will no doubt be of interest to our readers:

A Winnipeg man was in the head office on Mar. 6, and was favorably impressed with Mirror as a place in which to establish a contracting business. If he decides to locate, which is altogether likely, it will mean from 15 to 20 houses and store buildings for Mirror this summer.

During last week property has been sold to men in practically every State in the United States, in every Province of Canada, in England, Mexico, Bermuda, Iceland, Russia, India and other countries, but the best part of it is the greater percentage of the men who have purchased, have done so with the idea of at some time locating in Mirror.

A telegraphic order from a town in Saskatchewan was received on Mar. 5, for 16 business and residence lots, which the purchaser will doubtless improve.

In the Saturday Evening Post Philadelphia issue of March 2, a quarter page ad. over the name of G. U. Ryley, Land Commissioner, Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, was inserted. The Company will continue to use quarter page ads in the Saturday Evening Post throughout the summer, twice a month in addition to other magazines. This Saturday Evening Post ad costs the Company $1000 per issue.

Since February 1st, over 15,000 letters to all parts of the civilized world, on Mirror alone, have been sent out by the Winnipeg office, and during the next two weeks the same office will send out another 10,000 telling about Mirror.

The Saturday Evening Post ad. brought 63 enquiries on Mar. 6, and the following day 172. This advertisement will doubtless bring in the neighborhood of 1500 enquiries or more. One in the same publication last November brought 2000 enquiries.

There is no new town in the Canadian West today that is so much talked over as Mirror. A letter from a man in Alexandria, Egypt, was received, asking about this town. Another letter came from the Philippine Islands asking about Mirror. Letters of enquiry have come from Alaska, Cuba, Panama, South America and other countries from those who have heard of Mirror, and who want to know more about it.

A man who is in no way connected with the Townsite Co. or the Grand Trunk Pacific railway company, but who owns Mirror property, remarked:

"In ten year's time, Mirror will be one of the biggest cities of Western Canada."

HOCKEY CHALLENGE

The following appeared in the Alix Free Press of last week:

Alix, March 6th, 1912
Sec. Mirror Hockey Club
Mirror, Alberta

Dear Sir—We notice in the Mirror Journal of Feb. 29th that the Mirror Hockey Boys were not given a square deal in the game played in Alix recently. We now challenge the SAME team to play on natural ice N H A Rules.

Signed
Seey Alix Hockey Team

We understand the citizens have placed $200 in the Union Bank and are asking that the Mirror SPOITS cover this amount, game to be played on Mirror ice (same line up) any old time within the next two weeks.

At the time of going to press we are informed by the secretary of the Mirror Hockey Club that he has not received any notification of the above challenge. This is possibly oversight (?) on the part of the secretary (whoever that may be) and the challenge will be coming along shortly. We would also like to ask the secretary what he would have to do, before we go any further. We know about natural ice and artificial ice, but this new variety has the best of us. It may, perhaps be the kind that was ditched up at the last game played at Alix, but it surely deserves some other name. That $200 deposit in the Union Bank sounds good, but the fact of its being there doesn't seem to be altogether a certainty. We "understand" the Alix hockey team have issued a challenge to Stettler for the Holden Cup, emblematic of the professional hockey championship of Western Canada, and have requested the services of three of Mirror's players to assist them in their attempt to lift the mug. However, the Mirror Club is now disorganized and the risk paid down, but if the team from the South are anxious for a game, it will be up to the locals to accept the challenge and bring home the greenbacks.

Good roads are winning a permanent place in popularity with the farmers and no community is considered progressive that has not improved its public high ways. Build good roads and place this community in the progressive class.

THE LIVE STOCK COMMISSIONER

Dr. Rutherford, live stock commissioner for the Dominion, recently stated his belief that the beef production of Canada is on the decline. "The latest figures in my possession," he said, "point to a very serious falling off in beef production in Canada, which situation is made more grave by the phenomenal increase in the consumption of meat that has taken place in the country in the last few years."

The free grazing lands of the west are disappearing before the onward march of the gasoline tractor, breaking up lands for grain growing. The West is now consuming a large proportion of the beef it raises, and exports are falling lower. At the Winnipeg stock yards 102,000 head of cattle were received in 1911, as compared with 170,000 in 1909. Two-thirds of these cattle were consumed locally.

With the prospect of the immediate increase of population in the provinces of Alberta, will beef production keep pace with the needs of the consumer, or are we to go on for ever increasing wheat areas and diminishing our live stock? Has the relatively high home market of Canada to be dependent for its supplies of meats of all kinds upon imports?

The opinions of Dr. Rutherford on all questions pertaining to live stock are worth considering. He is a specialist and as live stock commissioner has under his immediate notice all the conditions prevailing throughout the country.

LITTLE HOPE FOR CHURCH UNION NOW

That the union of Presbyterian Methodist and Congregational churches of the Dominion will not be brought about by the present campaign is almost evident by the figures received up-to-date.

The Methodist ministers and officials are decidedly in favor of the amalgamation but the Presbyterians are not satisfied with the proposed basis of union or with union at all and as the returns increase in number, the proportions in favor decrease. At one time the proportions stood almost six to one. But this has now decreased to almost half that number.

From present indications, Ontario Presbyterian will about split even on the proposal.

Before the Presbyterian General Assembly will give the matter serious consideration for definite action, the majority must be so great that there will be no doubt as to the feeling. Probably ten members to one will be the basis upon which the feeling will be calculated.

"It must not be less than five to one anyway," stated Rev. Dr. McKay, moderator of the general assembly.

"The vote must show a very strong majority to justify the Presbyterian church proceeding with the union."

It is now proposed to tax autos in Ontario according to their strength. Snipe, not smell; horse-power.

There are many cures for warts, but as a rule nothing that has cured any body else's wart will cure yours.

CAN'T STOP THEM

The United States Government and the government of several of the States are to unite in an effort to stop the rush of people to Western Canada, and to divert the stream to some of the sparsely populated parts of the Republic. There is not much need for alarm that the Canada-ward movement will be seriously interfered with. So many thousands of former United States citizens are now living in this country and prospering here, that whatever the government may do, the knowledge of what Canada is and is to be, will continue to spread throughout the Republic and to attract other thousands of enterprising and desirable people.

The Old Clock

When people imagine they are the whole grist;
That without them the world would hardly exist,
That's all a mistake. There's many another
Who could take up your work, my dear sister or brother,
And do it so well—every wrinkle and twist,
That the world would forget that you did exist.
Suppose the hands of the clock should decide
That they were the power that moved the inside;
That the face was too round or the wheels too thick,
And if they wouldn't run, then the clock wouldn't tick.
And suppose the case, that they were so intent
On stopping the wheels that they soon became bent.
Well! What's the result? Why, the clock is repaired,
Each portion is thoroughly tested and aired.
The parts that are perfect are put back in place
The new hands will quickly appear on the face.
The clock is the same. It ticks on as of yore,
But the poor crooked hands are heard of no more.
Some people are just like these hands, if you please;
They think the whole world would jar if they were gone.
And because the world moved without their consent
They would call for a halt and would brace till their bent.
To gain recognition, they would ruin the clock
Though they know they'll be jilted themselves by the shock.
These unruly atoms! Why must they exist?
Break them off, they'll never be missed.
Like barnacles fast to the hull of a boat
They encumber each craft that's attempting to float.
The great wheel of progress no longer they'll check
For the sailors will quickly clean up the deck.
It will take but a moment new hands to replace;
These bent, useless wires thrown away in disgrace.
New hands will take up the good work again
For the life of the busy old clock will remain.
It will do its good work in all kinds of weather
For the wheels of that clock are all bound together.

Under a Cloud

A Girl Has an Opportunity to Know Her Friends

By BARBARA THORPE
Copyright by American Press Association, Inc.

Clara Bates, with whom I had stood at breakfast, wrote me that she was to have a house party at their country place during Lent and wished me to come to her at that time. I accepted and a couple of weeks before Easter went to the Elys, as they called the place—it was on high ground where I found a very pleasant party assembled.

Nevertheless all the guests had not yet arrived. The second day after I reached the Elys our hosts gave an automobile excursion. Feeling indignant, I remained at home. Late in the afternoon, thinking a little fresh air would do me good, I concluded to take a walk. As I was going downstairs the front door opened and a woman carrying a hand bag entered. I met her in the hall, and she said to me:

"I have just arrived from the city. It seems that the hostess is away. Have you any idea where I shall find my room?"

"I have not," I replied. "I supposed every room was occupied. I heard Miss Bates say so yesterday."

"You are quite welcome," she added. "The woman looked troubled."

"Make yourself at home in my room. I am going for a walk, and in the time I return you will have been to receive you."

I showed her to my room and went off on my errand. As I was about to leave, I was prevented for the reason that Ralph Priestley had been paying me a great deal of attention and had been looking at me as he passed. I was in her hand, this was partly the reason why I did not go to my room. He had intended to go in the same conveyance as my rival, and I preferred staying at home to see him driven to her. I returned just as the auto pulled up at the door.

"I saw Miss Bates," she said, "and she said she was coming. I am a mutual friend in their eyes."

At my exit, my mind was too full of my affair to think of anything else. The woman who had arrived and whom I had met in the hall, I did not notice in my excursion of discovery on the grounds of the estate of the party.

As soon as the detective was informed of my story as to the woman who had not been invited, he began his operations on a different line. He took down as minute a description of the woman as he could get. He was sure to be able to find a description of every article that was missing. I asked him why she had not been invited in my presence. He said, and he said that by informing some of the house she would be under suspicion from her long absence to dispose of her plunder.

"My several days while I was at work on the case I remained with the party, affable to those who were affected to me, paying no attention to those who were cool to me. There was a play going on in the evening, and I was watching. Miss Bates was so desirous to go to the Elys that she was willing to go to the Elys to see the play."

"The poor fellow was between two fires. He knew that I would not let him in so long as he continued his attention to me, and to bring me to the Elys, he had to go to the Elys, especially as his only chance was that she believed me a thief, which was no more than others of the party believed."

Then one morning the detective reported that he had found some of the missing property in a workshop and within a couple of days after the discovery had arrested a woman accused of it in her possession. She had been in the workshop for some time, and he had found her there. She had been in the workshop for some time, and he had found her there.

Among the curiosities of the Metropolitan Police is the headquarters of General Washington near Westminster, K. J.

One morning during his occupancy of the premises Lieutenant Edwin Goddard entered the hall when he did not see the private officer opened and Captain Alexander Hamilton, aid-de-camp to the commander in chief, stepped in.

"Is the general in his office?" asked Goddard.

"Yes."

"Busy?"

"Always busy."

"Do you think he will receive me?"

"Yes, in and he will let you know what to expect."

The lieutenant knocked and the answer came from within called upon him to enter. As he did so the general turned, his face showing a serious expression to be expected of one who was endeavoring to relieve the sufferings of his troops at Valley Forge and elsewhere, but was unable to do so.

He was always dignified and his subordination to the general was never forgotten. "General," said Goddard, handing him a letter. "I received this last night from the general."

"I have been seeking an opportunity to be alone when I stopped him looking at me as severely as I could and pointing to the letter."

"I have not listened to any man who, while I suffer under a false accusation, not only fails to give me his support, but turns upon me."

"I have not turned against you. I have been deceived myself to one who has assumed that an ally and has treated me accordingly."

I arose and swept out of the room, leaving the letter in the general's hand. He looked at it for a moment, then he transferred his attention to my rival and said:

"I have not listened to any man who, while I suffer under a false accusation, not only fails to give me his support, but turns upon me."

An Account of the Defense of an American Girl in Munich

By F. A. MITCHELL

One evening in Munich a party of Americans were sitting at a table in the Hofbrauhaus, the famous beer hall of that city, really to view the different persons about them. The party consisted of a Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn, their son George, aged twenty-two, their daughter Grace, aged twenty, and six Miss Oglethorpe, a young British baronet, whom they had met on their travels.

At a very late hour several young German officers were drinking and chatting in a very loud tone. At a third table, alone, was a young man, and, since he was alone, he was not noticed. He did not appear. He looked, however, like either an Englishman or an American.

It was not long before the young man was awakened from his slumber by a remark made by one of the German officers sitting near him. It was a remark of a Frenchman, and that he understood the language in which it was made.

"I have just received orders from General Hume," he said, "to march with my troops to the front. I am sorry to hear that you have been so long in the city. I am sorry to hear that you have been so long in the city."

"I am sorry to hear that you have been so long in the city. I am sorry to hear that you have been so long in the city. I am sorry to hear that you have been so long in the city."

A MORAL IN THIS STORY

A man who was to economical to subscribe for a paper, sent his little boy to borrow the copy taken by his neighbor. In his haste, the boy ran over a $4.00 stand of bees, and in ten minutes looked like a warty summer squash. His father, and failing to notice a barbed wire fence ran into that, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a new pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence, got into the corn field and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing a racket the wife ran out, upset a four gallon churn full of rich cream into a basket of little chickens, drowning the entire hatch. In her haste she dropped a $25.00 set of false teeth. The baby, having been left alone, crawled through the spilled milk into the parlor, ruining a $20.00 carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven wetting hens and the calves got out and chewed the tails off four fine shirts on the clothes line. [Now is the time to subscribe.]

A most disastrous fire visited Acme, Alta., Tuesday morning, and owing to ill-equipped fire-fighting apparatus of the town at the time threatened to completely wipe the place out of existence. As it was, almost a whole block is wiped out, and the loss is totalled up roughly to within the neighborhood of $100,000, which is said to be partially covered by an insurance of about $30,000.
